Saxton & Stump attorney Kim Selemba honored on CPBJ's "Women of Influence" list

FIRM NEWSPRESS RELEASE

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 24, 2026 — The Central Penn Business Journal has named Saxton & Stump senior counsel Kimberly A. Selemba to its 2026 "Women of Influence" list, a prestigious recognition honoring high-achieving women for their professional accomplishments, leadership, community engagement, and commitment to mentorship.

As co-chair of Saxton & Stump's Senior Care Group and a key member of the firm's Healthcare Litigation and Business Litigation and Strategic Solutions groups, Selemba has established herself as a leading advocate for healthcare providers throughout Pennsylvania. In her role as co-chair of the Senior Care Group, Selemba advises long-term care facilities and senior living organizations on proactive risk mitigation strategies, operational policies, and claims prevention. She has successfully defended healthcare providers and facilities in trials and arbitrations across Pennsylvania, helping clients navigate complex legal and regulatory challenges while protecting their operational integrity.

"It is an incredible honor to be recognized alongside so many accomplished women who are helping shape the future of central Pennsylvania," Selemba said. "Throughout my career, I have been fortunate to work with inspiring leaders whose dedication to their professions and communities continues to motivate me. I am grateful to be included among such an extraordinary group of honorees."

Beyond her legal practice, Selemba has demonstrated sustained leadership across the region. She served as president of the Dauphin County Bar Association in 2023, following prior leadership roles as vice president, secretary, and chair of the Young Lawyers Division. She is also a graduate and former board member of Leadership Harrisburg, a nonprofit organization dedicated to servant leadership and community service.

Her influence and leadership have earned her numerous professional accolades, including recognition on the City & State PA Law Power 100 list and repeated inclusion in The Best Lawyers in America® for Commercial Litigation.

"Kim exemplifies the leadership, professionalism, and service that define this recognition," Saxton & Stump Chairman James W. Saxton said. "Her unwavering commitment to her clients, her profession, and her community has made a significant impact throughout central Pennsylvania. This honor is a testament to the remarkable career she continues to build."

Selemba earned her J.D. from Penn State Dickinson Law, where she also served as an adjunct professor, mentoring future attorneys. She received her undergraduate degree from Dickinson College, where her success on the women's basketball team earned her induction into the institution's Sports Hall of Fame.
