Attorneys Saxton and King Publish Patient Engagement Article to Lancaster Physician Magazine

FIRM NEWSPRESS RELEASE

DECEMBER 3, 2019

Saxton & Stump attorneys James W. Saxton, CEO, and Darlene K. King, Chair of Saxton & Stump's Risk Mitigation & Safety Group, recently published part one of a two-part series in the fall 2019 edition of Lancaster Physician Magazine. In the article titled "Providers: Take Steps to Enhance Patient Engagement and Prevent Lapses That Lead to Lawsuits," Saxton and King address the importance for healthcare providers to properly engage patients and take proactive steps to reduce the risk of professional liability claims. More often, patients are prompted to seek legal action out of frustration or anger over non-clinical issues, rather than an adverse outcome after a procedure. The article aims to provide physicians and other healthcare professionals with the necessary steps to lay the foundation for a great patient relationship.
