Healthcare is constantly evolving. In a highly regulated industry with unique demands due to the value-based care initiative and corporate and financial considerations, hospitals, physicians and other healthcare providers are seeking partnerships that promote success for providers and offer better care to patients. We work with buyers and sellers of for-profit healthcare facilities and practices to form partnerships that address the difficulties of the healthcare industry and promote efficient, cost-effective and sustainable services.

The Corporate Healthcare and Life Sciences team at Saxton & Stump understands the industry-specific regulatory and organizational concerns faced by healthcare providers and provides a full range of legal services, including structuring transactions for mergers and acquisitions and compliance and regulatory matters (including issues relating to federal and state fraud and abuse, corporate practice of medicine, peer review matters, credentialing issues, fair hearing processes and procedures and immunity protections). We advise clients on state and federal regulations, including Federal Trade Commission (FTC) antitrust, fee-splitting and physician self-referral laws.

Due to the national scope of our work, we regularly navigate state-specific issues for our clients. We have worked with physician practices, physical therapy centers, urgent care facilities, clinical laboratories, pathology group practices and ambulatory surgery centers across the United States.

The Difference

In addition to our legal professionals, the Saxton & Stump team includes a group of highly acclaimed physicians, nurses, healthcare executives and consultants with experience in high-risk specialties, corporate and health policy issues. Our in-house team of consultants adds an additional layer of support for our clients.
