

Education

Saxton & Stump’s attorneys have extensive educational law experience, and have successfully assisted school districts, career and technology centers and other public school entities with a wide array of unusual and challenging problems, projects or litigation. We serve as the solicitor and general counsel for approximately two dozen school districts and joint school systems throughout central and eastern Pennsylvania, and as special counsel to many others throughout the state.

The group’s attorneys are innovators in many areas of education law and have achieved victories for our clients in state and federal court litigation, as well as administrative agency proceedings. We put our considerable experience, responsiveness and creativity to work to serve both school directors and school administrators fulfill their respective roles within the public education system.
